Dear Sirs,

I have been following the proposals for dealing with the Moorgate crossing and am very concerned about some of them.

They have been exceedingly expensive as well as impractical and complicated.

The proposed route is so distant from the original crossing making it too far to use conveniently as well as being steep and opening dangerously near a main road.

A more practical, safe and cheaper solution must surely be preferable.

I believe that there have been suitable ideas proposed and cannot understand why they are not being considered.

I hope this matter will be seriously reviewed.

Yours sincerely

Dr Teresa Spalding
